My name is _____.

Sometimes, I go to a place called Kaleidoscope Therapy.

Kaleidoscope Therapy is a place where I can learn, play, and get help with things like talking, playing, moving my body, or understanding feelings.

When I go to Kaleidoscope, I might see my Speech Pathologist, Imogen, to help me with talking and understanding.

Everyone there is kind and wants to help me.

When I arrive, I will walk through the front door to the waiting room.

I will wait in the waiting area with my parent or carer. I can sit and draw while I wait.

Then I will go into the room with my therapist. We will walk outside to get to the room.

In the room I will do fun activities like playing with toys, reading books, doing puzzles, look at pictures or using an iPad.

Sometimes we talk, move, draw,
or play games.

Other times we practice things that help me get better at stuff I find tricky.

It's okay to feel shy or nervous. My therapist will help me feel safe and happy.

When I'm finished, I will say "goodbye"
until next time.

Going to Kaleidoscope

grow!
